THE CONTRABANDS -The slaves who have been escaping from their masters in Maryland and Virginia, and who have received the title of "the contrabands," are mostly quartered in Duff Green's Row, on Capitol Hill, where there are at present about six hundred of both sexes, and of every age from the babe to the old man or woman of seventy They are quartered in the two northern houses of the row-the other houses being oc-cupled by the military. The sexes are kept sep-arate, except in the case of families, when they are assigned separate rooms from the others.

The Government find them in rations of bread, meat, coffee, rice, &c., of the same quality as the army ration, but not with clothing—that being procured by subscription. The National Freedman's Relief Association find most of the material, which is cut and made into garments by such of the female "contrabands" as can sew Their bedding is mostly found by themselves; some of them when they arrive in the city bring. ing surprising quantities of bedding and clothing with them; but when they are not prepared the Government furnishes them with a straw bed. In the quarters a school is conducted by Messrs.

S. L. Storer and James Marshall, who instruct them in the primary branches of education. They are said to make quite rapid progress, and some are stready reading with proficiency. Two sessions of the school is held each day, and often an evening session is held. About 200 of the contrabands attend the school, and are mostly supplied with books from parties at the North, who send packages almost weekly. Besides teaching this achool, Messrs. Sharer and Marshall give a lesson to the twelve or fifteen contrabands in the navyyard at noon each day. The studies pursued are eading, writing, arithmetic and geography, in which studies they are making unexpected progress. Many of them are anxious to emigrate to Liberia, especially these who are the most advanced, they not believing in the doctrine that the whites and the blacks can live peaceably on Preaching services are held twice each Sabbath Messrs Marshall and Sharer, with ministers of the various Evangelical denominations, at times omiciating. Bishop Pavne, (colored,) of the African Methodist Church; Prof. Dwight, of New York; and Prof. Cromwell, of Liberia, have lately conducted their services for them. The contrabands take great interest in the services, and three times a week, or oftener, they hold prayer meetings among themselves.

The Government employ many of the contrabands, drawing requisitions for gangs of them daily, and working them about the stables, hospitals and other places. Quite a number have gone to live with families in the city, and it is eileved that they generally give fair satisfaction, although the most of them, even the women, are field hands. A day or two since a lady took one of the women home, and after trying her for a day or so discovered that she could not wash, clean the house or cook, and on asking her what kind of work she was familiar with, received the reply, that she "could keep the flies off her mis-

Headquarters. Army of Potomac, May 29, 1862.—A bridge, 500 feet long, over Santa Anna creek, one of tributaries of the Pamunkey river, on the line of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac railroad, was burnt this morning by the Sixth Cavalry. This cuts off all communication by railroad between Richmond and Jackson's command, except the roundabout route by way of Petersburg, Lynchburg, Charlottesville and Staunton

The 5th Cavalry also went to Ashland, 18 miles from Richmond, on the same road, and burnt all the enemy's commissary and quartermaster's supplies, which they had stored there in large quantities. This will prove a serious loss to the
